Progress Reported In Fourth of July Plans

The first big work of the Fourth of July committees is to raise the money to put their plans across. The finance committee, composed of George R. Carter, chairman, Dave Richards, Tom Richards, E. Schreiber and Vincent Foley, began work yesterday.

There was a good attendance at the committee meeting held at the Elk's hall on Tuesday evening, where plans were discussed but they could not be put into definite shape until each committee chairman knows exactly how much money he will have to spend for the occasion.

Fred E. Conner reported that about 75 CCC boys will take part in the parade. Mrs. Carl Tobiassen reported that the order of Pocahontas and the Red Men will unite in putting a float in the parade.

Carl Tobiassen reported that the music depended entirely upon the money alloted to the music committee and that the Columbia Park Band could not be procured for less than $200 and the Nevada City high school band for not less than $100 and that it might be difficult to get the high school band together in vacation time. Chairman Frank Finnegan has called a meeting for next Wednesday hoping that at that time the finance committee will have completed their canvas and will be able to report that the citizens have responded in their usual generous fashion so that they can go ahead with plans for a memorable Fourth of July celebration that will be a great credit to the patriotism of historic Nevada City.

Chairman Finnegan reports that among the sports that will comprise a part of the entertainment program there will be rock drilling contests both by hand and with jackhammers, Cornish wrestling and other kinds of wrestling, and mucking contests.

Miles Coughlin, chairman of the invitation committee has reported to Mr. Finnegan that 300 invitations to individuals, many former residents of Nevada county and to organizations have been dispatched.

A Grass Valley committee has been appointed to take charge of that city's participation in the celebration in Nevada City.

HEY! HAVE YOU READ THE QUILL? IT'S JUST OUT

BY HARLEY LEETE JR.

All who were concerned with the success of the "Quill," Nevada City high's annual, are justly proud of their product. It is covered by a front cover has the letter's "The green imitation leather, and the Quill 1934" and a large dripping quill in gold on a vernal back ground.

The theme of the "Quill" this year, is "the search for gold" especially Jason's hunt for the Golden Fleece. The book is very appropriately decorated on this subject by Erma Keller, whose work is even more remarkable in view of the fact that there is no art instruction at the high school.

The inside of both covers and their facing pages are imitation gold leaf.

The contents of the book are divided into five sections, "Administration," "Classes," "Organizations," "Activities," and "Features."

The first division "Administration," contains the pictures of the faculty and the Board of Education, and individual compliments from Mr. Kjorlie and each member of the Board, to the Senior class.

The second division "Classes," has individual pictures of the Seniors with appropriate captions, and the list of class officers. This section also contains the Seniors "Class Will" and the "Horoscope," and a poem, "The Quest of Thirty-Four" by Bill Kirkham, together with the group pictures and officers of Juniors, Sophomores, and Freshmen.

The third section, "Organizations" is in reality the body of the book, besides numerous features, it contains pictures and personals of the following organizations: Honor Society, Searchlight Staff, Band, Orchestra, Executive Concil, Football, and Basketball teams, Block N C, Yell and Song Leaders, and the delegates to the Older Boys' and Girls' conference—and the Quill staff. The Quill staff follows.

Typists—Violetta Fond, Beryl Godfrey, Phyllis Williams, Gertrude Wilde, Alyce Dean.

"Organizations" has seemingly swallowed up the two remaining sections, "Activities" and "Features," as the whale swallowed Jonah. They consist of but a page of jokes, a few snaps and advertising.

Each division is marked by a thick green page.

The Quill staff is deeply grateful to those advertisers who helped the Quill to be a financial as well as an artistic success.

The contract for the printing the Quill was let to the Nevada City Nugget.

The book has proved extremely popular. The circulation manager states but 20 copies are left and advises those who want one to hurry in with the price.

PIONEER WOMAN OF CAMPTONVILLE, DEAD

CAMPTONVILLE, June 7.—Mrs. Mary Jennie Cunningham, another pioneer resident of this section, passed away Wednesday at her home here after an illness of several months, heart trouble being the cause of her demise. She was born at Trinity county, and was 71 years of age. She spent most of her life in this section, and was a prominent resident of Pike City for many years, operating a hotel at that place when Pike was a thriving mining town.

In the passing of Mrs. Cunningham, the community loses another of the old time people who did so much during the past decade in keeping up the community and making life worth-while. She was a woman of kind disposition, good character and of a loving nature, and a friend to all who knew her. She became a widow several years ago, and had to work her way through life, and at the same time take care of a grandaughter who was left an orphan. This girl she cared for to womanhood in a splendid, sacrificing manner, thus practically raising two families. She has been a familar figure in both business and social life of this section, and her passing will leave a vacany which cannot be easily filled.

She is survived by a son, William C. Cunningham, of North San Juan, a daughter, Mrs. Gertrude Myers, of Sacramento, and the grandaughter she has raised, Miss Dorothea Mark, with a number of other grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Saturday from the Holmes Funeral Home at Nevada City with interment in Pine Grove cemetery where her husband is buried.

Miss Elaine Mobley, teacher in the Placer union high school, at Auburn, is to return home for the summer, this week end, at the close of her school.

Mrs. Ruth Brown, of Bakersfield, came up to spend the summer in Nevada City with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Murchie. Mrs. Clara Brown, who accompanied her, has left for Kentucky, where she will spend the summer.

LIQUOR LICENSES LIMITED TO 21

The city council last night reaffirmed its former ruling that it would not grant any more liquor licenses. Two applicants appeared who had recently leased a hotel in this city and had brought their furniture for it. They were told that there were already 21 licensed liquor establishments here and no more would be granted.

C. B. Merriam, of the Carveth Insurance Company, called the council's attention to the fact that it would need public liability insurance for the new swimming pool. He stated that the minimum premium would be $100. The board decided to postpone action until the pool was ready for use.

Byron Janes told the board that after completing the spraying of nearly all the trees in the city, the rain had washed off the spray. The council decided that this was a matter of primary interest to the owners of the trees, since they paid the fee for spraying.

The following bills were ordered paid:

READY TO POUR CEMENT AT POOL

Contractor Y. C. Soda is already to begin pouring cement for the floor and walls of the new municipal swimming pool. The last two or three days of wet weather has checked progress, but even with this delay City Engineer Edw. Uren states that he expects the pool will be completed by July Fourth when dedication ceremonies will take place.

The new bath house, the contract for which the city council is now preparing to let, will be 12 by 100 feet in dimensions. It will have a concrete floor and will be finished on the outhide by imitation log siding. It will be so constructed that the floors may be flushed and kept clean. The building will be divided into men's and womoen's compartments and toilets and showers will be provided.

Al Kelliher has been appointed as the city's inspector to see that specifications regarding cement and other details of construction are properly fulfilled.

LAVA CAP WILL SINK CENTRAL SHAFT TO 1200

Preparations are going forward at the Lava Cap to start sinking within the next ten days to the 1200 foot level in the Central mine. Superintendent O. E. Schiffner states that the mine looks reasonably good.

One hundred tons of ore per day are being milled from mine operations. The company is installing an additional number of 500 Denver flotation cell, which was taken to the property last Wednesday.

A few men are employed in the Banner shaft where development work is going on. Ninety men are employed at the Lava Cap property.

Jerry Shelley, of Roseville, supervisor of Placer county, was a business visitor in Nevada City Thursday.

CAMPTONVILLE GIRL TO GRADUATE AND WED ON SAME NIGHT

CAMPTONVILLE, June 6.—Everything is in readiness for the big public wedding, graduation, and school benefit dance, which is to take place at the Masonic Hall Saturday evening, June 9. The affair will begin promptly at 8 o'clock, with the graduation exercises of the grammar and high school; an address will be made by Mrs. Agnes Weber Meade, county superintendent of schools, and Miss Lesta H. Joubert, a student at the University of California. Several musical numbers will be on the program, including a composition by Mrs. Dyer, of Los Angeles. As soon as the exercises close strains from the wedding march will be heard and the bridal procession will enter the hall, and James Jeffrey and Miss Geraldine Beach will be united in matrimony.

Following the ceremony, an all night dance will be in full swing, with supper served at midnight, the affair being a benefit for the local branch high school. A large crowd from the surrounding district is expected to attend.

BISHOP PORTER WILL PREACH IN TRINITY SUNDAY

The Rev. Noel Porter, Bishop of the Sacramento Episcopal diocese, will preach the morning sermon at the Trinity Episcopal church in this city next Sunday. He will confirm a class of candidates and participate in the Sunday school teaching.

Mrs. Porter will accompany the Bishop and they will be guests of the Rev. Charles Washburn, rector. The last occasion of Bishop Porter's visit here was that of the 75th anniversary of the founding of Emmanuel Episcopal church in Grass Valley.

At the morning service on Sunday at Trinity Sunday school, Bishop Porter will address the children. This is the bishop's first visit since last November to the children, when he assured them if there were 100 present that he would treat the entire school to ice cream cones. The children and the teachers are all working hard to make this total. In talking to the Superintendent Miss Elma Hecker, she is very confident that the children will be able to record the 100 in attendance and asks for the cooperation of the parents to make this a reality.

The church is to be decorated by Miss Rachel Penrose and Miss Elma Hecker and the girls would appreciate any flowers so as to make the church attractive for this special service.

KIDDIES HOLD MIRROR FOR DAD

The following are a group of letters written by seventh grade school pupils of the Washington school on: "What I Like About My Father."

He understands me. He is loyal to his country and his work. He would gladly spend the last cent for his family.

I like my father because he makes me save my money.

No matter what the situation is, big or little, my father always tries to give a good suggestion. He is always dependable whether it is to go fishing, camping, or to the ball game. He will tr and help me. He knows what a boy knows and almost tries to help in everything I try to do. I can only say "My Father is the man of my Hour."

My father is a cement man, when he goes to work he has clean clothes but when he comes home he looks like a statel, he all cover is secement and when he take off his panse they can stand right just like he was in them. My dad has a dog also that row with him every morning and sometimes he stick his head in the cement and the secement get hard on it and we have ahard times also. Ase soon ase my dad get home he hast to take a bath and some times he had a offel times geting the secemt off of him. I like to be a secemt man when I grow up also.

My father gives me everything I want, and when anything happens that we would upset him in anyway he takes it jolly and doesn't fuss around about it. He tells us how to figure different problems. He buys us clothing and food. He is kind to us in many ways. When I grow up I want to be kind like him so other people can talk about me as they do him. He is not only kind to us but many other people besides. Everyone that knows him talk about him as I am now.

I like the way he helps us boys when we need it. He advises us when we need to be advised. He makes us do what is best for us and not what we want to do. He is kind to us and lets us have a good time. He makes us do our home work for school, which is most importnat.

I like him because he has been to many places and can tell me many interesting stories. I also like him because of the kind of work he has chosen which is mining. His job has taken him in many places and he has seen many things. He can speak very clearly and distinctly and he has a very good vocabularly and is interesting to listen to.

I like my father because he is always kind and generous to everyone. He is full of fun and always takes an interest in things I have to say and always enters into things. He is fair and square to all the men that work for him, and is so nice that anyone can't help but like him.

There are a lot of ways I like about my father, one of them are: He always thinks of others. It seems to me that is one of he most politest and important things. There are more ways about my father that I like. He always give me a chance to explain when I am in trouble. If I am wrong he tells me what I should have done. Another important thing that I like, is, he is jolly and understands me perfectly.

BANK OF AMERICA ESSAY CONTEST CLOSES JUNE 22

Closing date for entries in Bank of America's $10,000 scholarship competition has been deferred to June 22, and essays submitted by that date will be eligible for consideration by the judges, it was announced today.

The change in the closing date was instituted in order to avoid conflict with the closing of the California schools for the summer vacation, bank officials said.

The bank is offering 414 scholarships and cash awards for the best essays on the subject of, "The World of 1964." Two primary awards of $2,000 hcholarships, to be utilized at any university for which the two winners can qualify scholastically, are offered.

Judges in the competition are Presidents Robert Gordon Sproul, of the University of California, Ray Lyman Wilbur, of Stanford and Rufus B. Von Kleinsmid, of University of Southern California.

Candidates in the scholarship competition are limited in age to 18 years or under. Essays are restricted to 1,000 words. The writers, whose age indicates their opportunity to become the leaders of tomorrow, may write in general on life in 1964, or may take up any particular phase of human activity in which they are interested: Science, agriculture, art, business, medicine or the law for example.

CROSSCUT ON 1000 LEVEL IN IDAHO MARYLAND MINE

The Idaho-Maryland Mines Company, Inc., is driving a crosscut northeast from its property to the Mitchell ranch, location of the former Pioneer mine, which the company purchased about two years ago. The tunnel is being driven from the 1,000 foot level. The south ledge on the property was developed by the late C. C. Mitchell and associates of the Pioneer for 200 feet below the surface and returned excellent assays. Mr. Mitchell brought some of the ore to the Nugget office several years ago and it carried high values.

President E. L. liver made the important statement about the Idaho-Maryland mine stock some time ago, to the effect that unless there is some radical change in taxation or cost of operation, earnings of the company should warrant higher dividends in 1934 than last year. In 1933, ten cents a share was paid totalling $172,160. Intensive development work is underway in the Idah-Maryland mine from which a net profit of $505,107 was realized last year.

The Brunswick mine, of the same company, is expected to be producing 150 tons a day before the end of the year. Errol MacBoyle is general manager.

DEVELOPMENT OF ALTA HILL MINE

A vigorous campaign of development is in store for the Alta Hill mine in Grass Valley and a part of the Golden Center property.

The headframe has been reinforced and the old workings unwatered. In sinking operations in the last few days, the company struck an old river channel.

At the Golden Center mine on the same property, crews are drifting in good ore and the mill is running three shifts.

JUDGMENT RENDERED FOR MINER'S WAGES

Judgment was given Leo Piantoni, upon his own and the assigned claim for wages of Mike Slatey, against Lee Hunt for work done on the Omega Quartz mine. The suit tried before Judge Raglan Tuttle, had joined Mrs. Blanche Neaves as partner, but her interest was proved by Robert Tharp, attorney for the defendants to have a limited interest partnership. Non-suit was granted Mrs. Neaves. Francis Finnegan was attorney for the plaintiff.

The Columbia Park Boy's club of San Francisco, will open their camp at Lake Olympia on June 25 this year, and will remain open until July 22. Visitors will, as usual, be welcome to the evening campfire programs. A feature of the evening programs will be the reading of the daily paper, which the boys plan to print which will chronicle the days happenings and also the usual wisecracks and jokes which always pervade a boys camp. This newspaper will be known as "The Lake Olympia Schmiercase (Daily) Gazette" and everyone is looking forward with much interest to its publication. Andrew Piercy, who directed the camp last year, will again be in charge, he will be assisted by Herb Meanwell, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Healey, Ogden Fields, James Hickey and Bill Post.

YOUR CHILD AND THE SCHOOL

By Dr. ALLEN G. IRELAND
Director, Physical and Health Education
New Jersey State Department of Public Instruction

The Tomato

What article of food has enjoyed a more phenomenal rise to popularity than the tomato? And from all accounts it is a most deserving ascendency.

By all means encourage it, both in your own diet and for the children.

Consider these values. The tomato is a rich source of vitamins —A, B, and C. It is economical and available all the year. Like the orange, its reaction in the body is alkaline, and so it tends to correct acid conditions. In fact, physicians are finding many uses for the tomato in special diets. For some persons it acts as roughage and therefore laxative.

Tomato juice and stewed tomatoes in a mason jar are excellent additions to the school lunch box. Moreover, tomato juice and milk are wholly compatible; that is, they can be taken together at the same meal. And fortunately most children like the tomato, for it lends itself well to many pleasing and tasty dishes.

The first line against disease in the daily morning inspection, says Dr. Ireland in his next article.

SUPERVISORS TO ASCERTA NUMBER OF EMPLOYED

The Nevada County C. W. A. committee and the Board of Supervisors met Tuesday morning to consider matters concerning the S. E. R. A. relief in this county. Cecil Dunne, of administration, appeared before the board on May 31 and there was assurance given that this county would receive $4000 monthly to be used for labor in uncompleted C. W. A. woork and such other projects ah would be approved by the S. E. R. A.

The work, if approved, is to be done by unemployed without other means of support. The supervisors considered 250 too large an estimate of unemployed and have asked for the appointment of an investigator. There has been some duplication in the lists of applicants handed in. It is the supervisors' earnest desire to comply with the requirement that only those eligible be given work on the C. W. A. projects.

Mr. and Mrs. Carl Tobiassen and children visited the San Juan Cherry Carnival, both days.

STEEL FENCES ERECTED AROUND RESERVOIRS

A six foot woven wire fence with steel posts, that will keep out persons, as well as the animals from rabbit size up, is being constructed around the two city reservoirs, north of Nevada City, this week.

Six men under the direction of H. H. Hallett started the work early this week and on Tuesday 300 feet of fence was completed. The reservoir on top of the divide, on Sugar Loaf, is the property of the Nevada Irrigation District and supplies water to the two lower city reservoirs.

A fence will also be constructed around the Canada Hill reservoir, which supplies water to the southern city limits. Gates are to be built and will be kept closed by Herbert Hallett, superintendent of streets.

ERROL MACBOYLE IS BUILDING AIRPORT

Errol MacBoyle, general manager of the Idaho Maryland mines, is having a private airport constructed on his property, the Loma Rica ranch, northeast of Grass Valley.

A 4,000 foot runway and hanger are to be made for the airplane. The field will be located north of his home on top of a hill near the Idaho-Maryland reservoirs, so as to be convenient to his home.

Mr. MacBoyle and Dr. C. P. Jones chartered the big plane several weeks ago and have enjoyed several nice trips. They flew to the gold conference in Denver, and then through several states before returning home.

315,000 PEOPLE KILLED

Between now and 1940, 190,000 people will be killed in automobile accidents.

The total of fatalities for the entire decade that began with 1930 will be 315,000, and the injury record will touch 10,000,000. The fatalities will be greater than the total of the soldiers killed in battle in the entire history of this county—and will surpass the battle casualties of the A. E. F., in the World War more than six times.

The number injured will be fifty times the number of A. E. F., soldiers wounded non-fatally in action.

That is what it is estimated will occur if the automobile accident record during the next six years follows the experience of the past four. As a matter of fact, there is an excellent chance that the number of fatalities and injuries will be greater still—the accident curve is tending upward, largely because of increased driving speeds.

There is one way in which this ghastly forecast can be proven wrong. That is by an aggressive campaign on the part of responsible motorists to modernize and strengthen traffic laws, eliminate cars which are defective in brakes, lights, steering and other essential parts, and to pass legislation which enforces adequate examination for drivers. So long as the drunken, the reckless, the incompetent and the irresponsible ride the highways, as they do now, the lives and property of all other motorists are in constant danger.

NEVER BE DOWNHEARTED

Faith in America and in ourselves was the real test of an inspiring address by Merle Thorp, editor of Nation's Business, before the 38th annual dinner of the Indiana Bankers' Association. Like other recent expressions of the country's leading writers on commerce and finance, Thorp conveyed a warning to business not to overdo an attitude of gloom. With faith regained, he said, "there will be a normal exchange of what each has to offer the other in this complex and vital modern society. And thrift, sacrifice, and good judgment will not be penalized for the slothful ne'er-do-well and the irresponsible."

"We Americans," declared Mr. Thorp, "are impetuous and impatient, and, above all, emotional. Our memories are so short. Only 5 years ago other nations were sending commissions, private and official, to study and report. And may I recall to you their findings?"

These, he said, were that, with only 7 per cent of the earth's population, the United States has more purchasing power than All Europe combined; has created and owns more than half the world's wealth; consumes half the world's coffee, half of its tin, half of its rubber, one-fourth of its sugar, two-thirds of its crude petroleum and three-fourths of its silk. With only 6 per cent of the earth's acreage, this country was harvesting more than half of the world's foodstuffs; It extracts 60 percent of its minerals; has developed and uses nearly half of its railways and electrical energy, and on its 600,000 miles of paved highways operates 92 per cent of the entire world output of automobiles.

"After all," remarks B. C. Forbes, in a financial editorial in the Hearst newspapers, "the responsibility for bringing about better times rests just as heavily upon business leaders as upon President Roosevelt. It is the duty of every employer of every responsible citizen, to make the best of unalterable facts and conditions, and to exert every effort to keep the country going in the right direction economically and employment-wise."

Nerves Do they torture you by day? Keep you awake at night?

What is it that keeps hospitals open and doctors busy? NERVES.
What is it that makes your face wrinkled and makes you feel old? NERVES
Nine times out of ten it's NERVES that make you restless, worried, haggard.

Nerves Do they make you Cranky, Blue--give you Nervous Indigestion, Nervous Headache?

When nerves are over-taxed, you worry over trifles, find it hard to concentrate, can't sit still. Nerve Strain brings on Headache.
Nervous people often suffer from Indigestion. There may be absolutely nothing wrong with the organs of digestion, but the Nerves are not on the job to make the organs do their work properly.

Nerves Do they interefere with your work; ruin your pleasure; drive away your friends?

You're cheating yourself and the man who pays you if you work when your NERVES are not normal.
You can't have a good time when you are nervous. You can't make or keep friends when you are keyed up and irritable. You may excuse yourself, but to others you are just a plain crank.

The Difference

When Ted Smith went to college,
They said he was a "grind;"
Because he tried at sundry times
To cultivate his mind;
And no one ever seemed to take
Much interest in him,
Although he burned the midnight "juice"
Till morning stars grew dim.

They let him have strong cigarettes,
And rum—when he could find it;
When he staid out till eerie hours
Nobody seemed to mind it.
He smoked till all his room was blue,
Irregularly dined;
For he was still intent m' dears
On cultivating mind.

Now Jim Brown made the football team
And different was his fate;
A howl went up both long and loud
When he staid out too late;
He couldn't smoke or take a drink,
He slept from dusk till dawn,
This big, brave, handsome lad, you see
Was cultivating brawn.

It seems the man who trains his brawn
Must keep himself in trim,
And never do the things that harm
His youthful zest and vim;
And that's the difference I discern
Between the rules that bind
The one who cultivates his brawn
And one who trains his mind.

A. MERRIAM CONNER.

SEA FISHING NOW TAKES HIGH RANK IN STATE SPORT

SAN FRANCISCO, June 7.—Sport fishing has never been better in southern California ocean waters than during the past three months, especially around Catalina Island where bonito and sea bass have furnished great sport. State Fish and Game Commission reports indicate that bluefin tuna, which has been very scarce during the past few years, has made an appearance in goodly numbers and sport anglers have had good success, while during April, two months earlier than tuna usually appear, one commercial boat brought in 40 tons of bluefin tuna.

People seem to be taking more to fishing this year than they have for some time past. The sale of angling licenses showed a great increase this year, and on the trout streams and lakes more men and women have appeared than during the past four years.

Along the southern California coast from piers, barges and boats, thousands of fishermen may be seen daily having great success in taking yellowtail, barracuda, halibut, sea bass and other varieties of desirable ocean fish. The higher temperature of the water is given as the reason these species of fish have shown up in such great numbers, and given to the angler the same success that the trout angler has had in the mountains this season.

HUSSEY MINE EMPLOYS FIFTEEN

The sinking of another lift at the Hussey mine in Willow Valley has now been completed, and drifting operations on the second level, about 200 feet below the surface, are now in progress. Fifteen men, working three shifts, are employed. In the east drift, where work is now in progress, the vein is increasing both in width and in grade, and it is now possible to send the entire rounds from the drift to the mill, with very little waste sorting necessary. The strength and width of the vein is considerably better than was encountered on the first level above at corresponding distances from the shaft, indicating improvement with depth. It is planned that as soon as sufficient drifting has been accomplished to provide ample stoping ground, sinking will again be resumed in the shaft.

The ores from the Hussey mine are being treated at the Queen Lil mill, one mile west of Nevada City, a ten stamp mill followed by flotation tables. In addition to handling Hussey mine ore, the Queen Lil mill does a limited amount of custom milling, and is equipped to make test runs.

The Hussey mine and the Queen Lil mill are operated by West Mines Corporation.

Nevada County Coroner—Offices in Nevada City and Grass Valley

Perhaps never before in the history of the county have the people given so much thought to the caliber of the man who will hold public office as well as their proved personal attributes and capabilities that would indicate how well they would hold their respective offices after being selected. This is true of the people of Nevada county, as it is of the nation. A. H. Holmes's constructive administration of his own private affairs and business has gained him a hearty regard and the respect of his colleagues, because his career as a citizen has been helpful and conducted in a sound and business-like manner. He has been indefatigable in his efforts to give the interests of his fellow citizens the best that is in him and his policies have been so manifestly honest and above board that he has won the plaudits of all, regardless of partisanship. It is such men who merit well at election time, for the day has passed when men are selected for office as a personal favor.

Washington Digest

National Topics Interpreted by William Bruckart

Washington.—The expanding influence of the federal government on the lives of individuals throughout the United States suddenly has become a matter that is attracting attention, and more and more repercussions are to be noted in the National Capital. Some observers tell me they think it is an indication that the multifarious agencies that have been set up under the New Deal are at last in full operation and their effects are now reaching to the grass roots of the country. However that may be, it can be stated without equivocation that the so-called alphabetical soup (the various administrations and boards and commissions known only by initials) are making their presence felt for better or for worse in the lives of individuals.

Feel Effects of New Deal

I cannot agree with the exaggerated assertion by a leading Republican politician that "we are subject to Hitler decrees from a hundred different sources," but there seems little doubt of vast power being wielded by the various New Deal agencies.

For instance, Harry Hopkins, federal relief administrator, has decreed that there will be no drought relief funds for cattle owners supplied by the federal emergency relief administration unless the holders of any mortgages on those cattle agree not to foreclose such mortgages. And, be it said, the mortgage holder who refuses to make such an agreement is up the well known stump. He can take the cattle, of course, when the mortgage matures, but if the mortgages have many months to run, the cattle are liable to die of starvation in the meantime. Without attempting to decide the merit of such a policy on the part of the federal government, the illustration shows the power that is wielded from Washington.

The Reconstruction Finance corporation has been exercising its influence with banks for some time. While RFC officials insist they are not attempting to control policies of banks, it nevertheless remains as a fact that they are exercising voting power in the boards of directors of numerous banking institutions. They went so far in the case of a great Chicago bank as to insist that the man they selected be elected by the board as its chairman. In addition, through the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, the bank policies on loans are closely watched, and this is happening at a time when the President and some of his advisers are strongly urging the banks to make loans. From what I know of the banking business, I imagine few banks will hesitate on making loans in large amounts providing the borrower has some security to put up that will assure repayment of the funds borrowed.

Typical of How Code Works

Under NRA and the numerous codes, various terms and conditions are laid down for business practices. Here is a typical case: the code for the graphic arts industries has a provision prohibiting extension of credit for longer than two years. That is, a printing plant owner or publisher of a country newspaper or any one else wanting to buy a linotype machine had been allowed sometimes as much as five years in which to pay for expensive equipment of that kind. Now, however, he must pay for it within two years or the manufacturer will be a code violator by selling it on a long term basis. Thus, it is to be seen that the code exerts an influence on what might be called the innocent bystander. The country publisher cannot save up gold with which to pay for the machinery because he would be a criminal to have gold under present law.

Again declaring that I am not discussing the merit of the proposition, it remains as a fact that the federal trade commission is exerting an influence on the type of investments individuals make as a result of its control over the issue and sale of shares of stock or bonds. Of course, the commission cannot reach a corporation that is doing business only in its home state, but the larger corporations engage in business on a broader scale than that and the bulk of shares and bonds, therefore, must not be issued until the federal trade commission's securities experts have determined the facts about the corporation that offers them. It is a matter of record, of course, that numerous corporations have sold purely blue sky stock, but the point I am attempting to make is that here is another federal influence on the lives of individuals.

There are so many other examples that could be cited that they would fill more space than is available here.

Forest Conservation

As we go through the month of June, another phase of the New Deal becomes effective. I refer to the development of the country's forests, privately as well as publicly, owned. While there will be no noticeable results for some time, the President's forest conservation policy has become operative nevertheless, and it is a long-range affair that is generally accepted as building for the future.

The program which the President initiated when he started the Civilian Conservation corps embodies a definite scheme for restoring forests that have been cutover and constitute nothing more than waste land; it provides for selective cutting of trees in lumbering operations, and it is designed to create in the minds of all citizens the necessity for sustaining our forests against the time when, at the present rate of destruction, there would be no more lumber. I was surprised when the forestry service told me that forest land was just about one-fourth of the entire area in the United States. But the forestry officials reminded me at the same time that unless there is a serious conservation movement, there is only enough timber in sight to provide lumber for about thirty years more.

Mr. Roosevelt is proposing legislation, most of which will be ready for the session of congress meeting in January, 1935, to provide machinery for co-ordinating the efforts of the federal and state governments and for gaining the co-operation of private land owners in restoring growing trees.

Headed for a Clash

A good many Washington observers are wondering how soon the federal trade commission and NRA are going to lock horns. The two agencies are certainly headed in the direction of a clash. It is generally conceded here that sooner or later General Johnson's NRA codes that establish monopolies in various fields of commerce and industry are going to be made the subject of pithy comment from federal trade commission circles. How soon it will come, or what form the disagreement will take, of course, can be only a matter of conjecture now.

It is necessary to recall the basis upon which the federal trade commission was created in order to get a clear understanding of the clash that is to be expected. First of all, the creators of the federal trade commission had in mind the idea of a federal agency that could be watching big business all of the time. Where it found unfair practices, smothering of the little independent units, and such other conditions as some sharp-shooting businesses use, the commission can, and does, cite them publicly. It goes after the facts in public hearings and exposes the practices. It also issues orders directing the offending businesses to eliminate the objectionable practices. If they choose to disregard the commission orders, the matter is turned over to prosecuting officers of the government and tougher penalties may be imposed.

Now, the national recovery act and General Johnson's codes have gone a long way toward making the commission's guardianship of little business nil in its effect. The codes permit monopolies, or rather, the codes provide under the recovery act that the anti-trust laws shall not apply to those businesses signing the terms and conditions of the codes. It is seen, therefore, that the provisions of the federal trade commission act can hardly be enforced. That is to say, the commission cannot order a business to cease doing something that General Johnson's codes declare to be quite all right.

Thus far, the commission has kept reasonably quiet about the thing. It is true, however, that its members have thoughts about the situation that would make interesting reading if they were to be expressed openly. The commission has kicked about a few of the codes in a mild sort of way. Its criticisms have been tempered, it is said, by the fact that none knows exactly how to go about effecting a reconciliation of the diverse positions enacted into law in the recovery act and the federal trade commission act. Apparently, there have been no instructions from the White House and so the commission is looked upon merely as drifting until such time as an administration policy is framed.

But somebody is going to have to iron out the differences. They cannot go on indefinitely. That fact is obvious. When one government agency goes ahead and allows a thing to be done that another government agency has been created to prevent, it is axiomatic that a collision is going to occur between them in due course.

Few observers, and few important leaders as well, are willing to attempt a prediction as to the outcome. One reason is that NRA is under fire from several directions and I believe it cannot be said to what extent the general principles of NRA are going to become imbedded in our industrial structure.

* * *

Government officials are becoming more and more concerned about the growth of smuggling and bootlegging of liquor. A determined effort is being made to check this illicit trade, but the optimism expressed by officials charged with the responsibility does not ring very loud. Indeed, the talk I hear in a good many quarters is that there must be some revision downward of the import duties and the local and state taxes on liquor or else the bootlegger and smuggler will be doing as much business as the legitimate, licensed dealers.

Fashions for Juvenile Smart Set

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

SUMMERTIME means vacation time, which brings clothes-planning time to hand for mothers who would dress their style-conscious children fashionably and appropriately.

Since camp life plays so important a part in the modern child's life, it might be well to consider the clothes question from that point of view. Designers of juvenile sportswear declare there is an increasing tendency to feature bright color in camp and playtime apparel. Because materials are strong and sturdy is no reason why they cannot be gaily colorful and attractive. So, the cotton broadcloths, the poplins, the gabardines and the argentine cloth which serve so admirably for children's recreation and everyday utilitarian clothes are coming out in unusually cheerful hues this season.

For youngsters who romp through woods and climb and wade and attend "gym" classes the idea of shorts, with inner bloomers that are brought up high so as not to be visible, is advocated. The newest shorts are pleated at front and back so as to give the appearance of a skirt.

After play hours, what then to wear? Why not a cunning tailored ensemble, on the order of the clever three-piece which the pretty little girl, to the left in the picture, is posing? The ensemble theme is being played up enthusiastically for children this season. Being so interchangeable with blouses and such, it is a guarantee of a well-dressed appearance for most any child at most any hour of the day. In fact, an outfit like this may be considered almost an entire wardrobe in itself.

With the jacket on, this lilliputian tailleur of marine blue flannel looks as modish as mother herself wears on cool days and on shopping tours. Looks nice, too, with the coat removed, for that wee button-up-the-front blouse of matching blue flat crepe is most wonderfully chic.

The older girl in the picture, who is helping little sister don her smart jacket, has on a sleeveless dress which also admits of interchangeable blouses. The one she is wearing while she poses for her photograph is a Mexican-stripe wash silk. Of course it would have to be stripes, for they are smart for everybody, old and young, this season.

Style interest in little girls' dresses is said to center around necklines and sleeves in the newer models. Which accounts for the wide pleated collar which finishes the neck of the wee frock of pale pinkish soft taffeta which the tot to the right in the group is wearing. You will note also that the sleeves are fancifully smocked. The vogue for taffeta has extended into the juvenile realm. If you prefer pastel crepes they are equally as good style for tiny folks' party frocks.

That sweet child in the foreground looks adorable in her airy-fairy frock of embroidered organdie.

WATCH NECKLINES

By CHERIE NICHOLAS

A change in necklines is in progress. High cut fronts are giving way to low cut fronts, after the order of the charming neckline which graces the gown pictured. This stunning cafe dress is fashioned of a handsome chiffon of bemberg. Its beautifully molded-to-the-figure silhouette, together with its interesting low-front neckline, make it outstanding in midsummer costume collections. Slim, long sleeves accented by three tiers of fine pleated net ruffles and a soft satin bow are intriguing details.

PLEATING IS USED QUITE EXTENSIVELY

There is much pleating in use now and it isn't all used for neckwear, although it does seem as though nothing fluffier than neckwear would be found. Ruffles and frills galore are lovely on some and so absurd on others. Narrow side pleatings can, however, be worn by almost any figure, which is not true of the draped polonaise.

The time has come to speak a word in favor of brown. The season is so clearly a blue one that women have been inclined to underestimate the high style interest in brown. During the first showings of the imports for midsummer brown was impressive and something of a surprise for, by that time, women were so happy that it was a blue year.

With the interesting brown and white, brown and grege and brown and beige prints, came lovely costumes in which yellow and brown were pleasantly associated.

Brown Still in Picture as Nifty Summer Color

While it is true that navy and black are leaders in spring fashions for daytime, it becomes increasingly apparent that brown is to be reckoned with. It is an important color by itself and especially in prints, particularly printed crepes.

The brown prints are featured in separate frocks, in jacket costumes and also in long coat ensembles and redingotes, and it's interesting to observe the definite favor shown combinations of plain and printed crepes, featuring brown shades.

A favorite version is the jacket costume with monotone skirt, worn with printed jacket and bodice, and costumes of this sort are attractive when done in polka dots, dots in dime or quarter size. Brown with white is then the favored combination.

Straw Cloth Appears

Straw cloth is a new material that has all the ear-marks of novelty with the more stable benefits of practicability. It consists of cellophane woven on artificial silk.

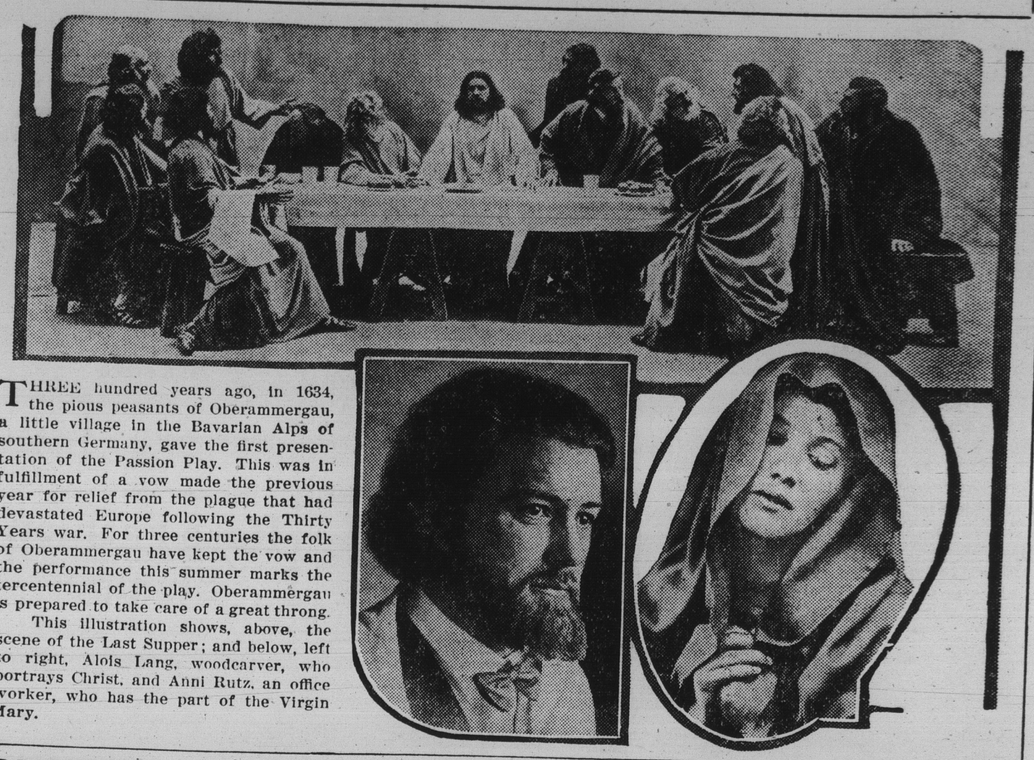
Tercentennial of the First Passion Play



THREE hundred years ago, in 1634, the pious peasants of Oberammergau, a little village in the Bavarian Alps of southern Germany, gave the first presentation of the Passion Play. This was in fulfillment of a vow made the previous year for relief from the plague that had devastated Europe following the Thirty Years war. For three centuries the folk of Oberammergau have kept the vow and the performance this summer marks the tercentennial of the play. Oberammergau is prepared to take care of a great throng.

BEDTIME STORY FOR CHILDREN

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

AN ALL-DAY SONGSTER

OVER in a maple tree on the edge of Farmer Brown's dooryard lived Redeye the Vireo and his little mate. Peter Rabbit knew that they had a nest there, because Jenny Wren had told him so. He would have guessed it anyway, because Redeye spent so much time in that tree. No matter what hour of the day Peter visited the Redeye Was a Little Fellow of About the Size of One of the Warblers.

Old Orchard, he heard Redeye singing over in the maple tree. He thought to himself that if song is an expression of happiness, Redeye must be the happiest of all birds.

Redeye was a little fellow of about the size of one of the Warblers and quite as modestly dressed as any of Peter's acquaintances. The crown of his head was gray with a little blackish border. Underneath he was white. For the rest, he was dressed in light olive green. The first time he came down near enough for Peter to see him well, Peter understood why he is called Redeye. His eyes were red. Yes, sir, his eyes were red, and this fact alone was enough to distinguish him from any other members of his family.

But it wasn't often that Redeye came down so near the ground that Peter could see his eyes. He preferred to spend most of his time in the tree tops, and Peter only got glimpses of him now and then. But if he didn't see him often, it was less often that he failed to hear him. "I don't see when Redeye finds time to eat," declared Peter as he listened to the seemingly unending song in the maple tree.

"Redeye believes in singing while he works," said Jenny Wren. "For my part, I should think he'd wear his throat out. Just listening to him makes my own throat sore. When other birds sing they don't do anything else, but Redeye sings all the time he is hunting his meals, and only stops long enough to swallow a worm or a bug when he finds it. Just as soon as it is down he begins to sing again while he hunts for another. I must say for the Redeyes that they are mighty good nest builders. Have you seen their nest over in that maple tree, Peter?"

Peter shook his head. "You probably couldn't see it anyway," declared Jenny Wren. "It is high up, and those leaves are so thick that they hide it. It's a regular little basket fastened in a fork near the end of a branch, and it is woven almost as nicely as is the nest of Goldy the Oriole."

"What's it made of?" asked Peter.

"Strips of bark, plant down, spider's web, grass, and pieces of paper," replied Jenny. "That's a funny thing about Redeye—he dearly loves a piece of paper in his nest. He's as fussy about having a scrap of paper as Cresty the Flycatcher is about having a piece of snakeskin. I had just a peep into the nest a few days ago, and unless I am greatly mistaken, Sally Sly the Cowbird has greatly imposed on the Redeyes. I am certain I saw one of her eggs in their nest."

That April, the fourth month of our year was the second month of the ancient Romans. Authorities differ as to the origin of the name, but it is possible that April was originally Aphrilis, from Aphrodite, the Greek name of Venus.

DAINTY DESSERTS

THERE is no dessert which so appeals to the appetite as ices or other frozen dishes, during the warm days. Here are half a dozen that will be appreciated by both the children and their elders:

Three Fruits Ice.

Put three cupfuls of cold water, three cupfuls of sugar and the grated rind of one orange and one lemon into a saucepan. Add one tablespoonful of gelatin dissolved in one cupful of boiling water. Simmer five minutes. Cut the pulp of three oranges, three grapefruit and three lemons into small pieces and add to the sirup when cold. Stir in the stiffly beaten whites of three eggs, freeze and serve with the meat course.

Fruit Potpourri.

Cut one and one-half cupfuls of orange into small pieces discarding all the membrane, but reserving the juice. Mix with one cupful of sliced peaches, three tablespoonfuls of pineapple juice and arrange in glasses. Add one-third of a cupful of sugar, one-half cupful of crushed pineapple, mix well and garnish with a maraschino cherry.

Banana Cream for Cake Filling.

Cream one-fourth of a pound of butter, add gradually one and one-fourth cupfuls of powdered sugar and one-half cupful of banana pulp. Mix well and use as cake filling or pudding sauce for cooked rice or cottage pudding. Add any flavoring desired.

Simple Fruit Salad.

Take two cupfuls of orange sections, one-half cupful of peeled and halved grapes, two tablespoonfuls of grape juice and serve with french dressing.

Fruit Ice.

Rub three peeled bananas through a sieve, add the strained juice of three oranges and three lemons, two cupfuls of sugar, three cupfuls of water and a pinch of salt. Freeze. Add thin cream instead of the water and one will have a delightful cream.

Milk Sherbet, Three of a Kind.

Mix the juice of three oranges and three lemons with the mashed pulp of three bananas, add three cupfuls of sugar and three cupfuls each of milk and cream. Stir until the sugar is dissolved and freeze.

QUESTION BOX
By ED WYNN . . . The Perfect Fool

Dear Mr. Wynn:

Apropos of the milk question, one thing has always bothered me. Could you possibly tell me why "cream" is always more expensive than "milk?"

Yours truly,
SUE PERRIN TENDANT.

Answer—The reason cream is more expensive than milk is simply because it is harder for the cows to sit on little bottles.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

When I was in England, last summer, I was simply fascinated by the uniformed policemen in London. What struck my fancy most were the hats they wore. Every hat I saw had a chin strap on it. What I want to know is this, do they wear those chin straps to keep their hats on?

Truly yours,
SIM PILTON.

Answer—Don't be silly, of course not. Those chin straps are for the policemen to rest their jaws on after answering foolish questions.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I bought a horse from a man who told me the horse could beat anything in his class. The first race I put him in, he lost. Can you account for that?

Yours truly,
I. M. MORVICH.

Answer—He was out of his class.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

I noticed a great number of young boys selling newspapers on the streets. One lad I saw could not have been more than ten years of age and he was carrying about fifty newspapers. Wouldn't you think they would make the poor little fellow tired?

Sincerely,
HUGH MANNY TAIRIAN.

Answer—Not necessarily. He probably doesn't read them.

Dear Mr. Wynn:

My boss is going to give me a day off next week. I would like to go some place, but I haven't any clothes to wear. What shall I do?

Truly yours,
TY PRYTER.

Answer—If you really haven't any clothes to wear, spend the day at Coney Island.

The Blacksmith's Daughter

By ANNE CAMPBELL

HOW many times she watched him,
as a child,
Shaping a heavy shoe.
The forge was hot . . . the summer morning mild. . . .
The anvil's ring was true.

And now that she is older, she knows well.
As he has turned the steel,
So had he cast her heart—a sounding bell—
That makes him her ideal!

The years have touched him lightly. . . . They betoken,
As evening colors blend,
She is, as she was then—with faith unbroken—
His daughter and his friend!

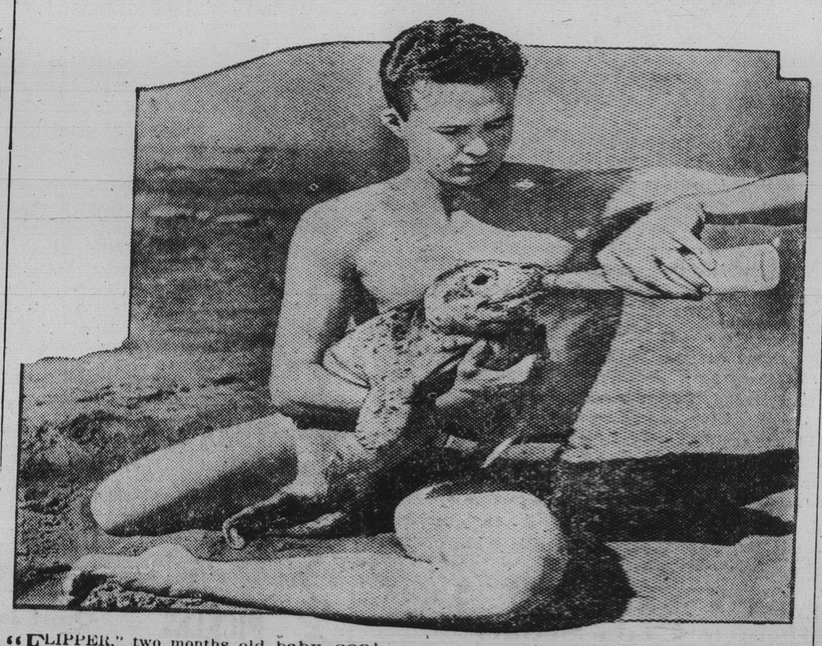
"Flipper" Likes His Milk and Water



"FLIPPER," two months old baby seal, was rescued at Long Beach, Calif., by Carl Johnson, nineteen-year-old school boy. Flipper, who was marooned on a float, climbed on Johnson's back, was safely brought to shore and after several weeks of being fed two quarts of milk every day from a bottle, has become strong and very much attached to his young master. He follows him around like a puppy and both enjoy swimming together

BILL JEFFERY IN CONSTABLE RACE

William C. Jeffery has announced that he will be a candidate for the office of Constable, of Nevada Township at the coming election.

Mr. Jeffery has been a resident of Nevada City for over 40 years. He was married here and has lived here continuously with his family ever since.

"Bill," as he is known by the residents of Nevada City and the surrounding territory, has had considerable police experience during the last several years. For 11 years he faithfully performed the duties of night watchman and policeman of Nevada City, having been reappointed many times to that position by various Boards of City Trustees of Nevada City. He has also been a deputy sheriff for eight years, appointed by Sheriff George R. Carter, and, during his police duties, often assisted the sheriff's office when his aid was requested.

For 35 years prior to his incumbancy of office as night watchman and police officer Mr. Jeffery was employed in various mines in Nevada county.

Mr. Jeffery believes that he is well qualified for the office of constable, not only because of his knowledge of police duties and methods of procedure, but because of his familiarity with the people and conditions in Nevada county.
